

Mats Lindquist Vice President, NovaQuest

As Vice President of NovaQuest, Mats Lindquist is involved in the identification and negotiation of strategic partnerships with pharmaceutical companies. He has almost 20 years experience as an executive.

Prior to joining Quintiles in 1998, Mr. Lindquist had experience in large and small organizations and has been involved in a multitude of business aspects in the life science sector with experience from both operational and Board-level involvement in growing as well as established operations. Before moving over to the pharmaceutical industry his professional career started with a short period as a psychologist and a longer period as a researcher in the field of behavioral pharmacology at the University of Uppsala. He has acquired a good deal of experience in clinical development, business development, marketing and sales in the medical field from companies such as AstraZeneca, Pharmacia, GlaxoSmithKline and others.

Mr. Lindquist also sits on the Board of Biophausia, an enterprise in the pharmaceutical field, listed on the Stockholm Stock Exchange.

He is a psychologist by training with university degrees in psychology and economy from Uppsala University, Sweden.

